INTRODUCTION

The enclosed biography of descendants of Henry Cabaniss, the Huguenot who fled France in the Seventeenth Century, is based on information obtained from court records in Virginia, from extracts from The Virginia Gazette, Bible records, newspaper clippings and personal memory of descendants now living.

2011587

It is intended primarily to be a record of the descendants of George Cabaniss (accd) who migrated to Shelby, North Carolina, about 1806, the descendants of whom meet annually in Shelby for their family reunion.

It is the prayer of the compiler of this information that other members of the family whose names are omitted--and who are descendants of the original Henry Cabaniss--will furnish information in order that a later publication will minimize these omissions.

The guide to the letter-system is explained in a separate portion hereof. It is felt that the guide will afford a ready reference from generation to generation and at the same time will permit the inclusion of additional biographies as they are obtained.

If any of the information contained herein is found to be incorrect, the compiler would be grateful for such information.

DECLARATION

I, the undersigned, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of the original as the same appears in the records of the Board of Directors of the City of New York, and that the same has been compared with the original and found to be a true and correct copy.

Witness my hand and seal of office this 1st day of May, 1901.

JOHN J. HENRY, Mayor of the City of New York.

Attest: I, the undersigned, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of the original as the same appears in the records of the Board of Directors of the City of New York, and that the same has been compared with the original and found to be a true and correct copy.

JOHN J. HENRY, Mayor of the City of New York.

Attest: I, the undersigned, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of the original as the same appears in the records of the Board of Directors of the City of New York, and that the same has been compared with the original and found to be a true and correct copy.

KEY TO INDEX SYSTEM

Individual families have been emphasized in the preparation of this record. For the convenience of the reader, the name of each direct ancestor is placed at the beginning of each family record.

The indexing system is quite simple once it is understood. Each member of the family is given a letter of the alphabet beginning with (a) in the order of birth so far as we have been able to ascertain.

The letter (a) has been assigned to Henry Cabaniss, the original immigrant. His name, therefore, is written:

Henry Cabaniss (a)

Henry Cabaniss (a) had three children. We list them in the order which they appear in his Will. The first child is Henry. For his identification, he carries his father's letter (a). As he is apparently the first born in the family, he also is assigned the letter a, hence, his identification symbol is: (aa).

Matthew Cabaniss was the second child mentioned in Henry Cabaniss' (a) Will. His code identification is: (ab).

George Cabaniss was the third and last child mentioned in the Will of Henry Cabaniss (a). His code identification is: (ac).

It may be seen at a glance, therefore, that Henry (aa), Matthew (ab), and George (ac) belong to the second generation of the Cabaniss family in America, as each has two letters in his code.

George Cabaniss (ac) named four children in his Will. These we have referred to by name and code as follows:

Mary Ann Cabaniss (aca)
Sarah Cabaniss {acb}
George Cabaniss {acc}
Jemimah Cabaniss (acd)

A glance at the name George Cabaniss (acc) in the index will indicate to the searcher that his biography should be searched for in the third generation.

Unless a mistake has been made, no two persons should have the same code number.

The code number permits a searcher to trace the ancestry of the holder.

The code further affords a ready method of determining kinship; for instance, in the eighth generation, we find the following two persons:

Mary Gordon Elliott (accdc-dfg)
Robert Smith Rudasill (accdf-gia)

It appears, therefore, that the first common ancestor is George Cabaniss (accd). By counting generations back to the common ancestor, we determine that both persons are members of the fifth generation, inclusive, from the common ancestor. The first generation is the common ancestor himself, and the second generation comprises his children who are brothers and sisters. Therefore, the two persons named above appear as third cousins. A rapid method of calculation is to count back, inclusive, to the common ancestor and subtract two.

Sometimes the generations are staggered, such as:

George Turner Cabaniss (accdf-gag)
Allen Hugh Cabaniss (accdf-beba)

The first is a member of the eighth generation, and the second is a member of the ninth generation. We start with the eighth generation and count back four to the common ancestor. When we subtract two, we discover that the two persons are second cousins. But one of them is a member of the ninth generation. To indicate their relationship properly, therefore, the term once removed is used. This means that the two above persons are second cousins once removed. In the event that the second person was a member of the tenth generation, such member of the tenth generation and the above member of the eighth generation would be second cousins twice removed.

The pages of this record are not numbered, as the use of the code index number makes the numbering of the pages unnecessary.

First Generation
of the
Cabaniss Family in America

Henry Cabaniss left London, England, in 1700 aboard the good ship Mary and Ann bound for the mouth of the James River in Virginia in a party of 205 persons, men, women and children, in search of religious freedom and political sanctuary in the new world. He had with him at that time his wife and one child of tender years named Henry. The Marquess de La Muce, Sir Oliver of Nantes, France, was in charge of the party assisted by Monsieur Charles de Sailly. The party arrived at the mouth of the James River on July 23, 1700, after a thirteen weeks passage. Attempts have been made to locate a description of the ship which brought the group to Virginia but as yet all attempts have been unsuccessful. Considering the size of the party and having in mind the fact that only one-fourth of the ship was reserved for passengers, it would be safe to assume that the ship was a large one probably three or four masts.

The Cabaniss family originated in France. Shortly after the revocation of the edict of Nantes in 1685, the family was forced to flee to Switzerland, where a large canton of french refugees collected in what is commonly known as a french canton of Switzerland.

Henry shortly thereafter made his way to Rotterdam, Holland, in company with seventy-four other refugees. There the Marquess de La Muce paid his passage and expenses from Switzerland to Rotterdam and from there to London, England.

The following extract is taken from a report that Governor Francis Nicholson of Virginia made to the British Lords of Trade on August 12, 1700. It is set out herein as the facts are fascinating:

"The 24th of the last month, I had the good fortune of receiving his Ma'y's Royal Commands of March ye 18th, 1699, sent me by your Lrd'p, concerning the 1700 Marquis de la Muce, Mons'r de Sailly, and other French Protestant Refugees; and I beg to leave to assure yo'r Lord'p, that as I have, so I will endeavor to obey them (they were on board the ship Mary and Ann, of London, George Hawes, Commander, who had about 13 weeks passage, and the 23d of the last month arrived at the mouth of this river), and upon receipt of them, I immediately went down to Kickotan, to give directions in order to their coming hither, some of wh. came on Sunday in the evening, the rest the next day. I wrote to Colo. Byrd and Colo. Harrison to meet them here, w'ch they did, and we concluded that there was no settling them in Norfolk nor thereabouts, because esteemed an unhealthful place, and no vacant land, except some that is in dispute now betwixt us and No. Carolina; So we thought it would be best for them to go to a place twenty miles above the falls of James River, commonly called the Manikin Town. There is a great deal of good land and unpatented, where they may at present be all together, w'ch we thought would be best for his Ma'ty's Service and Interests, and that they would quickly make a settlement, not only for themselves, but to receive others when his majesty shall be graciously pleased to send them. They may be prejudicial to his Ma'ty's interest and Service, vist., by living long together, and using their own language and customs, and by going upon such manufacturers, and handicraft Trades as we are furnished with from England; but according to duty, I shall endeavor to regulate they affairs, and when, please God, the Council meets, I shall lay before them the matters relating to these Refugees. On Tuesday I mustered them, and No. 1 is a copy of the list of them. Colo. Byrd went before them in order to meet them at the Falls of this river, where he formerly lived, to dispose of them thereabouts, till they can gett housses or sheds in the place for their Reception, and he promised to go along with the Marquis & Mons'r de Saily to show them the Land. The people at present seem to be well effected towards them, and to commiserate their condition, and some who have seen them have given them money, viz: Colo. Harrison, 5*l*; Mr. Commissary Blair, the like sum. The Reverend Mr. Stephen Touaie, thereabouts; Mr. Benjamin Harrison, 5*l*; Mr. Attorney General Fowler, something as likewise; Mr.

First Generation

William Edwards, Merchant of this place.
I am apt to think that Several Gentlemen and others will be charitable to them.
They went from hence yesterday.

"If his majesty be graciously pleased to send over more, I humbly propose that Mr. Micajah Perry, merchant of London, may be spoken with about their passage hither and that they may have their passage on board the Ships which come to the upper parts of James River, w'ch is the nighest place to their settlement, and that there may not above 40 or 50 come in any one ship; so they may be better accommodated in all respects, for I have observed that when the ships that come into these parts are crowded with people,
'tis very prejudicial to their health; some getting sicknesses, w'ch not seldom prove catching, some dy on board, and others soon after they come on shore."

F. Frs. Nicholson

(Endorsement). "The Gov'r of Virginia

Accounts of proceedings there, etc."

The refugees were transported to the site of the deserted village of the Monacan Indians. This tribe of Indians was the same to which the family of Pocahontas belonged. The earliest reports state that the first ship (of which Henry Cabaniss was a member) were settled between the Monacan and Powick Creeks which ran into the James River above the falls. The settlers arrived too late to make any crops for their winter provisions. As a consequence their conditions were very poor. A large percentage of them died during that first fall and winter and the remainder suffered for lack of bed clothing and food. Many complaints were made by the leaders of the James River settlement to his Majesty the King outlining in detail the abominable conditions under which they suffered.

An attempt was made at first to congregate the refugees in one place, forbidding them to leave without the permission of the local authorities. A local government was established under the leadership of Monsieur de Sailly. Complaints were registered against de Sailly because of the hardness of his heart in carrying out the political organization of the group. For one thing he refused corn and provisions to the refugees landing in the second ship unless they took an oath of allegiance to the Justices of the Peace which he had appointed.

First Generation

Evidently Henry Cabaniss took advantage of a relaxation made by the Council whereby the refugees were permitted to leave the settlement and live on adjoining plantations in order to earn their livelihood. This conclusion is reached because of the records of the colony containing no reference to Henry Cabaniss after his arrival. He evidently went to the plantation of the Epes family as they grew to be great friends.

The next record that we find is in 1709 when he received a grant of 200 acres in Henrico County, Virginia. We do not know how long he retained title to the land. No mention is made in his will of it and the items listed in his inventory at his death are devoid of any reference to farm implements to indicate that he lived a farmer's life. On the contrary the best conjecture is that he made his living as a goldsmith. He loved to play the violin and he had one in his possession at his death.

Henry is variously reported as having married a woman by the name of Marie. This would be the one who accompanied him to America. It is variously reported that she died sometime shortly after the arrival in this country. It is considered that he married Mary Harrison about 1710. She was of the family of the Harrison's of James River. Credence is given to this family legend in that his son, George Cabaniss, was the Captain of the Sloop "Betty", owned by Colonel Benjamin Harrison. At the time George was only in his early twenties.

Henry (a) had three children: Henry Cabaniss (aa), Matthew Cabaniss (ab), and George Cabaniss (ac).

The descendants of Henry Cabaniss who lived in Rutherford County, North Carolina, are the descendants of this third son named George (ac).

Henry Cabaniss died about 1720. His undated will was probated in Prince George County, Virginia, on August 9, 1720.

First Generation

Henry Cabaniss (a) was a very religious man. He gave up his fortune and friends in France because of his religious convictions. The depth of his convictions are exemplified in the beauty of his will which is set out as follows:

"In the Name of God, Amen. I, Henry Cabanis of Westover Parish in Prince George County being sick and weak in body but by the blessing of God in perfect sence mind and memory, but calling to mind the uncertainty of this mortal life, and desirous to settle the small estate it hath pleased the Almighty God to bless me with in this world, do make constitute and Ordain this my Last Will and Testament, revoking and making void all other Will or wills heretofore by me made, first and principally I commend my Soul into the hands of Almighty God, who gave it, begging pardon for my sins, through Jesus Christ our Lord, and my body to be buried according to the discretion of my Executor or executors hereinafter named, and as for my Worldly goods I give and bequeath in manner and form following as Viz:

Imp. I give and bequeath unto my son, Henry Cabanis, my Silver Shoe Buckles and Old Sword.

Item: I give and bequeath unto my son, Mathew Cabanis, my largest Gold ring, and my Silver hilted Sword.

Item: I give unto my Son, George Cabanis, a Gold ring.

Item: I give and bequeath the remaining part of my Estate after my just debts is paid, to be equally divided between my loveing wife and children.

Item: I do constitute and appoint my loveing wife, Mary Cabanis, and Francis Epes my whole and sole executrix and executor of this my Last Will and Testament.

Signed, sealed, and acknowledged to be the Last Will and Testament

(as it is contained on the other side) of Henry Cabanis in presence of us.

Drury Bolling
John Fitzgerrald
Ira Epes, Junr."

It is true that some of the early wills followed this general form of Henry's will. But this is not any reason to lessen the conclusion that Henry was a person of deep religious conviction.

The Marquis de la Muce was a member of the Reformed Church in France. It is quite logical that Henry was also a member of that belief.

These early French refugees to this country are generally referred to by the name of French Huguenots.

- ac GEORGE CABANISS - Born in Prince George County, Virginia, about 1714; son of Henry Cabaniss (a); on 2 January 1737 he and his brother, Matthew Cabaniss, were patented 347 acres on the upper side of Sellar Creek, adjoining John Ragsdale and Francis Epps, for the sum of thirty-five shillings. On April 15 of the same year, an item appeared in the Virginia Gazette reporting an attempt made on the life of Captain Hamlin and his Mate (George Cabaniss) while the sloop Betty was at sea enroute from Jamaica to Williamsburg, Virginia. The sloop was owned by Colonel Benjamin Harrison. Thereafter on June 17 of the same year, the sloop cleared the upper district of James River with George Cabaniss as its master; on 20 August 1741, his brother, Matthew Cabaniss, divided the 347 acres in Amelia County, Virginia, patented to both of them in 1737; on 18 May 1744, his undated Will was presented for probate in Amelia County, Virginia, by his brother, Matthew Cabaniss; in which he referred to his wife, Grace (Gean); in his Will he refers to a tract of land owned by him in Brunswick County and two tracts of land owned by him in Amelia County; he refers to the following children: Mary Ann Cabaniss (aca), Sarah (Sary) Cabaniss (acb), George Cabaniss (acc), Jemimah Cabaniss (acd); evidently his widow remarried in September, 1848, as on 20 August 1748 a suit brought by her as widow of George Cabaniss against Matthew Cabaniss and Thomas Anderson, Executors of her husband's estate, was dismissed by agreement; and on 21 October 1748 his daughter, Mary Ann, chose her uncle, Matthew Cabaniss, to be her Guardian, and the Court appointed persons to divide the estate of George Cabaniss; and in August 1751, his daughter, Sarah Cabaniss, chose James Cabaniss, to be her Guardian, and in March 1752, his brother, Matthew Cabaniss, was appointed Guardian of George Cabaniss; his daughter, Jemimah Cabaniss, who on 26 February 1756, chose William Westbrook as her Guardian; and on 22 September 1757, his son, George Cabaniss, chose James Hall as his Guardian.

NOTES

The first part of the paper discusses the general principles of the method of moments, which is a powerful tool for analyzing the behavior of systems. It is particularly useful for systems that are characterized by a large number of degrees of freedom, where the exact solution is often intractable. The method involves approximating the system by a smaller number of degrees of freedom, and then solving the resulting equations. This approach is based on the idea that the system's behavior can be described by a few key parameters, which are determined by the method of moments.

The second part of the paper presents a detailed analysis of the method of moments, showing how it can be applied to a wide range of systems. It includes a discussion of the various forms of the method, and how they can be used to solve different types of problems. The analysis is based on a series of examples, which illustrate the strengths and limitations of the method. It is shown that the method of moments is a very flexible and powerful tool, which can be used to analyze a wide range of systems.

The third part of the paper discusses the applications of the method of moments, and how it can be used to solve a wide range of problems. It includes a discussion of the various forms of the method, and how they can be used to solve different types of problems. The analysis is based on a series of examples, which illustrate the strengths and limitations of the method. It is shown that the method of moments is a very flexible and powerful tool, which can be used to analyze a wide range of systems.

The fourth part of the paper discusses the results of the analysis, and how they can be used to solve a wide range of problems. It includes a discussion of the various forms of the method, and how they can be used to solve different types of problems. The analysis is based on a series of examples, which illustrate the strengths and limitations of the method. It is shown that the method of moments is a very flexible and powerful tool, which can be used to analyze a wide range of systems.

The fifth part of the paper discusses the conclusions of the analysis, and how they can be used to solve a wide range of problems. It includes a discussion of the various forms of the method, and how they can be used to solve different types of problems. The analysis is based on a series of examples, which illustrate the strengths and limitations of the method. It is shown that the method of moments is a very flexible and powerful tool, which can be used to analyze a wide range of systems.

The following newspaper item was published at his death:

"Dr. James William Cabaniss died at his residence in Cleveland County, N. C., on the 28th day of September, 1862, in the 52nd year of his age. The deceased was for more than twenty years the child of affliction and for several years previous to his death confined pretty much to his room and bed, reduced almost to a skeleton by that terrible disease, Dyspepsia; all of which he bore with Christian fortitude and resignation, seldom if ever heard to mourn, but waiting God's own appointed time. The Doctor was a true and faithful member of the M. E. Church for about 15 years before his death, giving a full assurance of his dying testimony, the religion he professed was able to carry him through the valley and shadow of death and fear no evil. The day before his death I called to see him for the last time -- my old and much esteemed friend, with whom it had been my pleasure to be intimately acquainted for more than thirty years. I found him completely emaciated and worn out, scarcely able to speak, but retaining all the vigor of his intellect. He spoke of his final end with the utmost confidence in God, waiting for his appointed time. When I bade him good-by, he took me by the hand and with a firm grasp said, 'Farewell, my old friend. God bless you; may we meet in Heaven.' Thus has passed away from us a most excellent and good man leaving to mourn loss an affectionate and pious wife and four interesting daughters, with a large circle of relations. May the affliction be sanctified to their good."

1. Introduction

The purpose of this study is to investigate the effects of various factors on the performance of a system. The study is divided into three main sections: a literature review, a methodology section, and a results section. The literature review discusses the current state of research on the topic. The methodology section describes the experimental setup and the data collection process. The results section presents the findings of the study and discusses their implications.

The study is organized as follows. Section 2 provides a detailed overview of the background and the motivation for the research. Section 3 describes the experimental design and the data collection process. Section 4 presents the results of the study and discusses their implications. Section 5 concludes the study and provides recommendations for future research.

101. The first part of the problem is to find the area of the region bounded by the curves  $y = x^2$  and  $y = 2 - x^2$ . The curves intersect at the points  $(-1, 1)$  and  $(1, 1)$ . The area of the region is given by the integral  $\int_{-1}^1 (2 - x^2 - x^2) dx = \int_{-1}^1 (2 - 2x^2) dx = 2 \int_{-1}^1 (1 - x^2) dx = 2 \left[ x - \frac{x^3}{3} \right]_{-1}^1 = 2 \left( 1 - \frac{1}{3} - \left( -1 + \frac{1}{3} \right) \right) = 2 \left( \frac{2}{3} + \frac{2}{3} \right) = \frac{8}{3}$ .

The first part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the general principles of the theory of the subject. It is shown that the theory is based on the assumption that the system is in a state of equilibrium. This assumption is then used to derive the equations of motion of the system. The equations are then solved for the case of a simple harmonic oscillator. The results are then compared with the experimental data. It is found that the theory is in good agreement with the experiment.

1. Introduction

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of understanding the underlying mechanisms of the system. It highlights the need for a comprehensive analysis of the data and the role of the various components involved. The second part of the paper focuses on the development of a robust model that can handle the complexity of the data. This involves the use of advanced statistical techniques and the integration of domain knowledge. The third part of the paper presents the results of the analysis and discusses the implications of the findings. It also provides a detailed description of the model and its performance. The final part of the paper concludes with a summary of the key points and a discussion of the future work.

1. The first part of the paper discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that proper record-keeping is essential for the success of any business or organization. The author argues that without reliable records, it is impossible to make informed decisions or to identify areas for improvement.

2. The second part of the paper focuses on the challenges of record-keeping in a digital age. While technology offers many advantages, it also introduces new risks, such as data loss and security breaches. The author suggests that organizations should implement robust backup and security protocols to mitigate these risks.

3. The third part of the paper explores the role of record-keeping in legal and regulatory compliance. It highlights the importance of maintaining records that can be used to demonstrate adherence to various laws and regulations. The author notes that failure to do so can result in significant penalties and reputational damage.

Introduction

The purpose of this study is to investigate the effects of various factors on the growth of a specific plant species. The study was conducted over a period of six months, during which time the plants were grown under different conditions. The results of the study are presented in the following sections.

The first section of the study describes the experimental setup, including the selection of the plant species, the growth conditions, and the methods used to measure growth. The second section presents the results of the study, showing the growth of the plants under different conditions. The third section discusses the implications of the results, highlighting the factors that most significantly affect plant growth. Finally, the study concludes with a summary of the findings and suggestions for further research.

The results of the study show that the growth of the plant species is significantly affected by the amount of light, water, and nutrients it receives. Plants grown under high light conditions showed the highest growth rates, while those grown under low light conditions showed the lowest growth rates. Similarly, plants grown with more water and nutrients showed higher growth rates than those grown with less. The study also found that the growth of the plant species is affected by the temperature of the environment, with higher temperatures generally leading to faster growth. These findings have important implications for the cultivation of this plant species, as they suggest that optimal growth can be achieved by providing the plants with the right combination of light, water, and nutrients.

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that this is crucial for ensuring the integrity of the financial system and for providing a clear audit trail. The text also mentions the need for regular reviews and updates to the records to reflect any changes in the data.

The second part of the document focuses on the implementation of the proposed changes. It outlines the steps that need to be taken to ensure a smooth transition from the current system to the new one. This includes identifying the key areas of impact, developing a detailed plan, and communicating the changes to all relevant stakeholders. The text also discusses the importance of monitoring the progress of the implementation and making adjustments as needed.

Page 102

The final part of the document provides a summary of the key findings and recommendations. It reiterates the importance of maintaining accurate records and implementing the proposed changes effectively. The text also offers some final thoughts on the overall state of the financial system and the steps that need to be taken to improve it.

Table

The following table shows the results of the experiments conducted on the effect of the temperature of the water on the rate of the reaction between the acid and the alkali.

The first series of experiments was conducted at a constant temperature of 20°C. The results are shown in the following table.

The second series of experiments was conducted at a constant temperature of 30°C. The results are shown in the following table.

The third series of experiments was conducted at a constant temperature of 40°C. The results are shown in the following table.

The fourth series of experiments was conducted at a constant temperature of 50°C. The results are shown in the following table.

The results of the experiments show that the rate of the reaction increases with increasing temperature.

CHAPTER I

THEORY

Let  $\triangle ABC$  be a triangle, and let  $D$  be a point on the side  $BC$ . Draw the line segment  $AD$ . Then the area of  $\triangle ABD$  is to the area of  $\triangle ADC$  as the length of  $BD$  is to the length of  $DC$ . This is because both triangles share the same height from vertex  $A$  to the base  $BC$ .

TABLE I
Summary of the results of the experiments
Experiment	Results
1. Effect of temperature on the rate of reaction	The rate of reaction increases with increasing temperature.
2. Effect of concentration on the rate of reaction	The rate of reaction increases with increasing concentration.
3. Effect of catalyst on the rate of reaction	The rate of reaction increases with the addition of a catalyst.
4. Effect of surface area on the rate of reaction	The rate of reaction increases with increasing surface area.
5. Effect of pressure on the rate of reaction	The rate of reaction increases with increasing pressure.
6. Effect of solvent on the rate of reaction	The rate of reaction increases with the use of a polar solvent.
7. Effect of pH on the rate of reaction	The rate of reaction increases with increasing pH.
8. Effect of ionic strength on the rate of reaction	The rate of reaction increases with increasing ionic strength.
9. Effect of dielectric constant on the rate of reaction	The rate of reaction increases with increasing dielectric constant.
10. Effect of viscosity on the rate of reaction	The rate of reaction increases with decreasing viscosity.

The following table shows the results of the experiments conducted on the 10th of May 1900. The experiments were conducted on the 10th of May 1900. The results of the experiments are as follows:

Experiment	Result
1. The effect of the temperature on the rate of reaction.	The rate of reaction increases with increasing temperature.
2. The effect of the concentration of the reactants on the rate of reaction.	The rate of reaction increases with increasing concentration of the reactants.
3. The effect of the surface area of the reactants on the rate of reaction.	The rate of reaction increases with increasing surface area of the reactants.
4. The effect of the presence of a catalyst on the rate of reaction.	The rate of reaction increases in the presence of a catalyst.

The results of the experiments show that the rate of reaction is affected by the temperature, the concentration of the reactants, the surface area of the reactants, and the presence of a catalyst. The rate of reaction increases with increasing temperature, increasing concentration of the reactants, increasing surface area of the reactants, and in the presence of a catalyst.
